DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Phillips, Jr. et al. 4,845,862. Phillips, Jr. et al. '862 discloses all the limitations of the claims including the following: a soft boot 10 comprising a moisture transferring lining material 22; a frothed (foamed) breathable foam material 24; a moisture transferring non-woven material 26; a soft exterior shell material 50.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Phillips, Jr. et al. 4,845,862, as applied to claim 1 above, in view of Phillips, Jr. et al. 3,020,169. Phillips, Jr. et al. '862, as applied to claim 1 above, discloses all the limitations of the claim except for at least one layer of the soft boot including fibers flocked to at least one side of the at least one layer. Phillips, Jr. et al. '169 teaches that a lining for a shoe upper can contain fibers flocked to one side thereof to prevent slipping of the user's foot within the shoe. Therefore, it would have been obvious, to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, to flock fibers to any one of the layers of the upper to prevent slipping of the user's foot or the layers with respect to one another during use of the boot.

5. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the references as applied to claim 2 above, in view of Morishita et al. 4,015,347. The references as applied to claim 2 above disclose all the limitations of the claim except for the flocked fibers being silver fibers. Morishita et al. '347 teaches that shoe parts can contain silver fiber to aid in preventing or treating athlete's foot. Therefore, it would have been obvious, to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, to flock silver fibers to the inside layer of the upper to aid in preventing or treating athlete's foot during use of the boot.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure and are cited on form 892 enclosed herewith.
